Veneer Types Overview

Reconstituted Veneer

Engineered from renewable timber sources, reconstituted veneer offers a consistent grain and color tone across large surfaces. Ideal for modern interiors, it brings the beauty of wood with superior uniformity and availability.

Dyed Veneer

Through advanced dyeing processes, dyed veneer delivers rich, vibrant colors without losing the wood's natural texture. A designer's favorite for bold accents and creative finishes.

Rotary Cut

Spun against a long blade, rotary cutting peels the log into continuous sheets, revealing broad, flowing grain. Taken from the full circumference, these veneers bring movement and rhythm — perfect for wide, seamless wall panels where the grain itself becomes the design.

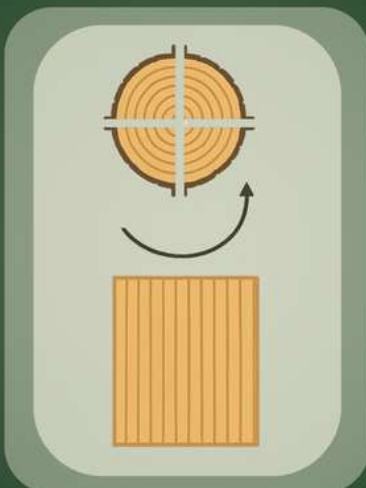

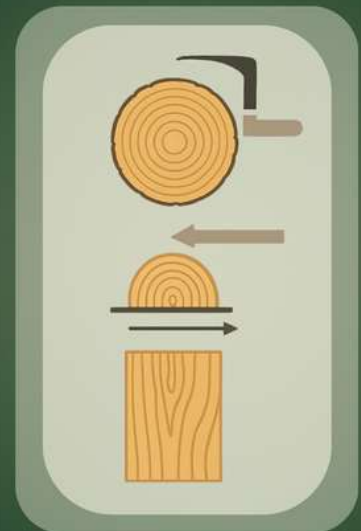

The Language of Grain

Discovering how each cut shapes character

Mismatch is a hybrid approach that combines plain-sliced and quarter-sawn sections.

Plain Sliced [Crown Cut]

Also known as plain or crown cut, this method slices through the log's heart to reveal the familiar cathedral figure. The result is warm and expressive, ideal for furniture faces, doors, and interior accents where the tree's natural character takes center stage.

Quarter Cut [Quarter Sawn]

The log is first quartered, then sliced to create clean, linear grain with quiet refinement.

Quarter-cut veneers offer architectural precision and stability — suited for modern interiors and detailed millwork.

Each cut speaks a different language — movement, character, or clarity.

Choose the one that tells your story in wood.

*Veneer is not just a material — it breathes.
Within each layer lies a story of light, grain, and time.*

At OREGON Veneer, we listen to that story — shaping it into surfaces that speak to both space and silence.

*Come closer. Let the grain guide you.
Every surface you touch continues nature's quiet language.*

Available Products:

- 3.6mm x 4' x 8' Veneer on Plywood
- 2' x 8' x 1.8mm ($\pm 10\%$) Veneer (unless otherwise specified)
- 3.6mm x 4' x 10' sizes available on selected species.

Care and Maintenance

Crafted from genuine timber, each veneer carries the warmth of nature. With simple care, its elegance lasts for years to come.

Wipe gently with a soft, dry cloth. Use mild moisture only when needed — then dry immediately. Avoid harsh chemicals or abrasives.

Keep away from direct sunlight, heat, and humidity. Use mats or felt pads to prevent scratches and stains.

Apply quality wood conditioner occasionally to restore luster. Natural patina and minor marks reflect its timeless character.

— Every veneer ages with grace, refined by care.
